

HINDUISM AND JUDAISM

PRESENTER:
DR. SIDDHARTHA S.
NADKARNI

The relationship between Hindus and Jews goes back over 3000 years. And there are many similarities between Hindu and Jewish mysticism. Dr. Siddhartha S. Nadkarni will discuss the notion that a divine substratum pervades everything in the world – and will use examples from Hinduism and Kabbalah (Jewish mysticism) to show that both religions describe these mystical concepts in similar ways.

Are Hinduism and Judaism sister religions? What are the similarities? How do neuroscience and physics factor into the discussion?

Dr. Nadkarni's talk is designed to help bring together the JCC's Jewish community and Indian community in a dialogue to help us better understand each other's traditions.

Dr. Siddhartha S. Nadkarni is a double boarded neurologist and psychiatrist. He is a graduate of the University of Miami School of Medicine and is currently the Program Director Combined Residency in Neurology and Psychiatry at New York University's School of Medicine, the Program Director Epilepsy Research Fellowship, the Director Neuroscience Curriculum Psychiatry Residency Training Program, and Director NYULMC Fellows' Epilepsy Clinic. He is the recipient of the Robert Cancro Award for Excellence in Teaching at the NYU School of Medicine, and the Irma Bland M.D. Award for Excellence in Teaching Residence. He has published numerous research papers on the topic of Epilepsy.
