

ISRAEL'S FRIENDS AND FOES: THE 2017 MIDDLE EAST REALIGNMENT

Back by popular demand, Moshe Levi, The Jewish Agency's Shaliach (emissary) to the Jewish Federation of Greater MetroWest New Jersey, will discuss "Israel's Friends and Foes: The 2017 Middle East Realignment." In May,

Moshe Levi

Moshe's excellent talk at the JCC focused on Israel's challenges with either a two-state or one-state solution with the Palestinians. In this new talk, Moshe will discuss Israel's shifts in alliances with its Middle-East neighbors. In the face of Iranian aggression, what is Israel's current relationship with Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and the other Gulf states? Are Israel's peace treaties with Egypt and Jordan holding up well? And outside of the Middle-East, what is Israel's current relationship like with Russia? With India? And with the United States, too? Please join us for what is sure to be an outstanding talk. Coffee, tea and dessert will be served.

Moshe Levi is The Jewish Agency's Community Shaliach to the Jewish Federation of Greater MetroWest New Jersey. Moshe has extensive experience in Jewish education. He served for two years as a shaliach for United Synagogue Youth in Minneapolis, Minnesota and has worked with the Avi Chai Foundation and the Shalem Center on a variety of educational initiatives. Most recently, Moshe served as The Jewish Agency's coordinator of Youth Movement Shlichim. Moshe was born in Israel and grew up in Jerusalem. He served for three years as a medic in an infantry unit of the IDF, and he holds an MA in Comparative Religion from Hebrew University.
